

Utilization of root locus in analyzing and designing control systems, including a case study of third and/or fourth order system.

Investigation of the response curves of the first and second order systems and illustration of the main characteristics at the time and Laplace domains.